Flying to St. Louis

Directions to Washington University's Danforth Campus from Lambert-St. Louis International Airport

- Rent a car: Head east on I-70 to I-170 south (Exit 238B). Exit on Forest Park Parkway (Exit 1E) and continue on for 2.5 miles, turn right on Big Bend Boulevard. Turn left on Forsyth Boulevard and left on Hoyt Drive.
- Take a taxi: Cab fare is $25-$30 each way.
- Ride the MetroLink (commuter railway): For approximately $4 you can take the MetroLink light rail system from Lambert-St. Louis International Airport to the Danforth Campus. Board the train at either the Lambert Airport Main Station or the Lambert Airport East Station (trains leaving the airport travel in only one direction). Exit the train at the Forest Park-DeBaliviere Station. Cross the platform and wait for the next westbound train going to Shrewsbury I-44. Board that train and take it one stop to the Skinker Station. This station is at the intersection of Skinker Boulevard and Forest Park Parkway (see map). Exit the train and take the steps or elevator up one flight, then take the underground bridge across the tracks. Walk up the ramp, then take the steps or ramp to ground level. You will see Brookings Hall southwest of the station. The Chemistry complex of buildings (Louderman Hall, McMillen Laboratory building, Laboratory Sciences Building, Radiochemistry Building, and Cyclotron Building) can be found on the campus map at the link above. The trip will take approximately 30-40 minutes.
